

A LETTER OF INTEREST

Col. John S. Mosby Writes About Hon. R. M. T. Hunter.

POLITICAL DISABILITIES

Measure for Their Removal was Gotten Through by Colonel Mosby's Efforts.

His High Opinion of Mr. Hunter—Wanted Him President.

The following interesting letter from Colonel John S. Mosby to Judge T. R. B. Wright, of Essex county, will prove interesting, dealing, as it does, with the measure for the removal of the political disabilities of R. M. T. Hunter, formerly a United States Senator.

Judge T. R. B. Wright, Tappanham, Va.: My Dear Sir—I have been putting in reference to your letter in Washington, in which I spoke to you of the part I had taken in procuring the removal of Mr. R. M. T. Hunter's disabilities. It was the first time, I believe, that I ever mentioned it to any one, and the occasion of it was a conversation with a notice of a life of Mr. Hunter by a member of his family. Although I was raised in an Alabama Whig, and had never seen Mr. Hunter, I was always an admirer of his public character. He had some opinions about the constitutional right of re-election which I had been taught to abhor, but they were mere academic abstractions, as it was understood that he was opposed to the policy of putting them into execution. As politics and expediency are one and the same thing, or rather should be, I was in a subordinate position with Mr. Hunter, who had become conservative, and was opposed to the policy advocated by Governor Wise and Mr. Jefferson Davis, of establishing slavery in the territories by an act of Congress; for a law protecting slavery, there was a law to establish it. There never was any law requiring a man to hold slaves in Virginia; there were laws protecting the right of property in slaves. As slavery, or the right of property in man, is against common right, all writers of public law say it is against a positive law to support it. Mr. Webster once told Calhoun that the real question at issue was not the right of a slave owner to his slaves, but the right of a slave owner to carry with him his local law forbidding slavery, and an emigrant from Maine must claim the right to take along the Maine liquor law. In this way there would have been a great conflict of laws in a territory. The result of the conflict of tongues at Babel, Mr. Hunter was opposed to this unwelcome policy that really precipitated the downfall of slavery. After leaving the University I had located at Bristol, in Southwest Virginia, and remember in the winter of 1855-56 writing an article in the Richmond Examiner in favor of Mr. Hunter for Congress. It was signed "Little Tennessee," the popular name of the Congressional district. It brought out a reply from a friend of Governor Wise, to which I published a rejoinder, remembering very well that I spoke of the dignity of Mr. Hunter's character as a statesman and his high standing in the democracy, and that I quoted Ben Jonson's description of the noble eloquence of Bacon as equally descriptive of Mr. Hunter's speeches. I make no complaint about it. My fate has simply been the common lot of mortality—

"First the deed of noble daring,
Born of heavenward aspiration,
Then the fire with mortal sharing—
Then the vulture, the despairing cry of pain on Crags Caucasian."

I never met Mr. Hunter until December, 1878. I had been appointed consul at Hong Kong, and some cases before the Court of Appeals. Two are reported by Gratton-Kenny vs. Hoffman, and Smith vs. Blackwell. As I was crossing the Capitol Square on my way to the court room I met Colonel Frank Hunter, and we got into a conversation. He introduced me to Mr. Hunter and we had a few minutes' talk. I never told him of my article in the Richmond Examiner. A few days afterwards I left Virginia and never saw him again. I am glad to hear that his biography has been published, for in his day he was a great public character, and his name is intimately associated with the history of the times.

Very truly,
JOHN S. MOSBY.

Interesting Occasion.
The meeting at the Y. M. C. A. hall, Main Street, Sunday afternoon, was one of exceptional interest. The orchestra rendered several excellent selections. Miss Patricia Isaacs sang two solos in a charming manner, and a number of her singing. Miss Kate Fuller, the well-known elocutionist, gave some choice readings that delighted the audience and delegates to the recent National Y. M. C. A. Conference, at Topeka. As a city free from sickness, was most favorably commented upon and when the hope was expressed that some day old Richmond would be a city of barons, the members were hearty in their approval of the hall and applause.

feeling toward Mr. Hunter, growing out of the slavery conflict, called his attention to the bill for his relief and asked him not to oppose it. He promised me that he would not. I remember telling him that Virginia had just voted for Grant, and that the unanimous passage of this bill would be a handsome recognition of a law to establish it. There never was any law requiring a man to hold slaves in Virginia; there were laws protecting the right of property in slaves. As slavery, or the right of property in man, is against common right, all writers of public law say it is against a positive law to support it. MESSAGE TO PRESIDENT

Commissioner to General Assembly Objected to It.

HE MOVED ITS REFERENCE

But Proposition Met Storm of Disapproval and Resolution was Adopted With Only Few Votes Cast Against It.

(By Associated Press.)

LOS ANGELES, CAL., May 23.—The harmony that has prevailed since the opening of the Proslavery General Assembly received a slight shock Sunday. Although the storm was of but momentary duration, it, nevertheless, caused the only commotion that has stirred the body since the sessions began. After discussion had been made of the business of the session, Rev. Frederick K. Stanley, of Atlantic City, N. J., introduced a resolution that "this message be sent President Roosevelt."

"Christian greeting. With prayer for God's blessing on you, and divine guidance in all your high responsibilities. See numbers 6, 24, 26."

A commissioner in the center of the house rang to his feet and in a loud tone said:

"Mr. Moderator, I move that this resolution be referred to the Committee on Correspondence."

A second to this motion was made immediately. There were loud cries of "No, no," from all parts of the house.

Moderator Coyle hesitated for a moment and then remarked in a decisive tone:

"I do not think that this would be the proper disposition of this resolution. Before he could proceed further, he was interrupted by calls of 'vote, vote.' Moderator Coyle rapped vigorously with his gavel and said: 'All those in favor of sending this resolution to the Committee on Correspondence will say 'aye.'"

There was a faint response by perhaps a score of commissioners, which a moment later was made to seem insignificant by the great volume of 'noes.' "The resolution is lost," said Moderator Coyle, striking his gavel upon the table with a resounding whack. There was a burst of applause from the commissioners, as well as from the galleries. It was quickly moved and seconded that the resolution made by Mr. Stanley be adopted, which was done by an unanimous vote.

OUTING DOWN THE RIVER

Annual Trip of Church Hill Young People—Delightful Trip.

The third annual outing given by the young people of Church Hill and West End to Drew's Island, Captain Kline in charge, was a grand success.

Arriving at 10 P. M., all threw their hands up and began drawing out the multitude of fish. By the time the (cow) bell rang for dinner, and they were glad to find in the boat and on the shore, where awaited them a sumptuous repast, which was enjoyed by all, after which the evening was spent in boating and music, furnished by the West-End Angels' Mandolin and Guitar Club. Among those present were Misses Louisa Gies, Carrie Lyne, Ollie Gibson, Lella Atkinson, Ruth Atkinson, Norma Wingfield, Willie Wierfield, Mary Shiplett, Grace Collier, Mrs. Osborne, Mrs. Roscher, Mrs. Freeman, Mrs. Snead, Mrs. Stutz, Miss Gladys Snead, Messrs. John Roscher, W. D. G. Harrison, J. Osborne, H. Thomas, W. Hamlett, Dan Osborne, Charles Wilkerson, Harvie Walton, Harvie Walton, B. Irvin and Will Stutz.

One of the members of the School Board, who asked us not to mention his name, who were glasses, told us a good story.

"Superintendent Fox was on one of his trips through the school, and the gentleman with the glasses, said:

"He had about completed the circuit, and was in one of the colored schools. He then had got to what I am about to the terrified children, so he said:

"Now, I want every one of you to listen and pay attention to what I am about to say. I want you to recite a sentence in which the word 'delight' occurs."

Silence reigned for fully a minute after the superintendent ceased speaking. Then a little black head popped up in the rear of the school.

"He then said the superintendent, with a smile in his voice.

"There's a bright little fellow. Now speak out loud, so the whole school can hear and heaved a sigh. Then he said:

De man, I opened de do, and de light blazed out.

Mister Blair Meanley eats his dinner before he goes to school.

We do not mean that he sits at the table upside down, or that he rubs his hands together, or that he rubs his hands together, but we mean that he rubs his hands together, and eats his dinner before he goes to school.

The new Constitution and statutes incident thereto have conferred upon the Corporation Commission adequate means of enforcing it and in response to notices sent out the body yesterday started out for receiving its first installment of $30,000.

The members look for great results in this line and each expected to respond. The Commission had no applications for charters yesterday.

THE CITY COMMITTEE

MEETS IN AUGUST

In all likelihood, there will be a late primary in which to hold the election for the House of Delegates in Richmond this fall and if this be true, every effort will be made to postpone the canvass until after the hot weather.

Chairman James B. Doherty said yesterday that he did not anticipate any meeting of the City Committee until the matter until some time in August and it is said that most of those interested in the matter favor putting off the final struggle until some time in October.

Members of the City Democratic Committee for the year 1908-09, who were nominated at the same time with the House members and a long ticket is anticipated. Candidates are readying themselves for the House, but it is not with the intention of going into any early canvass.

GOVERNOR BUSY

Receives Callers and Reads Papers in the Southwest Cases.

Governor Montague spent yesterday in his office and was busy all day receiving callers and reading over papers on cases that are now pending before him.

His Excellency has taken up the application for commutation of sentence in the two Southwest Virginia cases, in which men in Wise and Dickenson counties are to hang on June 12th, for a barrier executive interference, and was engaged during much of the day in reading them over.

He will hardly reach a decision on either for some days yet, as the applications in both are very voluminous documents.

So far as is known, the Governor has no plans which will take him out of the city during the week.

OPPORTUNITY FOR YOUNG MAN

Good Place Waiting for Right Person on State Farm.

Mr. Henry Nicoll, who owns a large stock farm at Zion's Mills, in Lee county, is in a dilemma. He has a capable man to assist him on his place in the conduct of his business, but he writes Commissioner Keener that he has been unable to find such one. He says that he would like a young man, preferably with a college training, his duty to be "caring for breeding a herd of cows, and feeding young stock for market." To the right man, he says, he can offer a most desirable position, which pays well.

ELECTRICITY CASES

Three Charges of Interfering with Meters to Be Heard To-Day.

In the Police Court this morning the cases of Charles Glanvott, W. J. Taylor and Guleppit will be called.

These men are charged with interfering with the proper registration of the electricity meter in order to cut down the showing in the amount used. The charges are brought by the Passenger and Power Company.

Lecture at West View Church.

The third of the series of lectures inaugurated by the Committee on Institutional Work at West View Baptist Church, Grove Avenue and Meadow Street, will be delivered Wednesday night. The lecturer will be Dr. Robert Frazer, of Warrenton, a well-known educator. The lecture will be free and the pastor and officers of the church cordially invite the people of the community to attend. Dr. Frazer's subject will be "Modern Education."

Meeting of Juniors.

Elba Council, Jr. O. U. A. M. will meet in regular session at Monroe Hall, to-night at 8:15 o'clock. Mr. E. T. Keeton, past State councillor, will make an address and tell of the cause of the living of the loyalists and the insurgents. All Juniors are invited to be present.

FRENCH COACHING STALLION.

Dark brown horse, 16.2 hands high. Imported from France at a cost of $8,000. Winner of first prize at the National Horse Show at Madison Square Garden, New York, in 1890 and again in 1891.

Javanais can truly be called a very superior specimen of a coach horse. In color he is a rich seal brown and his weight is upward of thirteen hundred. He has very powerful shoulders and thighs; hips and legs that are seldom equalled. His feet are perfection. While he is a runny horse with elegant carriage of head, he is closely ribbed and has the roundness of barrel so characteristic of this breed of horses. He is of a very gentle disposition, is a great walker and has showy, the action while traveling. In harness he can show close to a three-minute gait. He was imported especially for breeding purposes. Although the owner would not hesitate to breed this horse to mares of any size, yet it might be well to note that the crossing of this horse with smaller mares will usually result in adding greatly to the size of their produce. It has been noted in the cross breeding of this breed of horses with ordinary mares, that the foals develop early and are well adapted for farming or other purposes where a combination of strength and staying powers for working purposes and use for driving are required.

"Javanais" is quartered at the DEEP RUN HUNT CLUB STABLES, in charge of J. H. RICHMOND, the manager, who will gladly show the horse and give full information as to fees.
